National Construction Safety Officer (NCSO®) Application

The National Construction Safety Officer (NCSO®) program and designation provides formal, entry-level training to individuals who have a minimum of three years field experience in the construction industry. The NCSO® designation meets the national standard requirements and verifies that a person has met the training, practical application, years of experience, and written performance measurements set out by the Canadian Federation of Construction Safety Associations (CFCSA). Persons who achieve the NCSO® designation are a valuable resource to management in the administration and implementation of a company's health and safety program. This entry level certification indicates practical knowledge in various construction safety management skills and principles.

Persons who do not possess three years of practical construction field experience can apply for the National Health & Safety Administration (NHSA™) designation, with the opportunity to upgrade to the NCSO® designation once experience requirements are met.
